The Pato family introduces a new metal base

February 2019

Fredericia presents three new chairs to the Pato collection that blend functionality, comfort and durability; making them the perfect choice for a variety of settings - from residential homes to public spaces.

The Pato collection, originally intended for the professional markets, is now extended with new Pato models offering the collection towards new audiences.

By introducing a base in sleek steel tubes, the chairs are imbued with a slightly more elegant feel perfectly suited for residential homes.

This impression is further complemented by a selection of high-grade leather and fabric upholstery or a seat in veneer.

The gentle processing of the seat in polypropylene results in a silky smooth surface with no visible injection marks, which makes it just as suitable for residential settings as the upholstered models.

Furthermore, this surface is both easy to clean and durable making it last for decades to come.

The Pato collection is characterised by extreme versatility that satisfies a diverse range of needs and purposes, whether lounging, dining or working.

Pato is made in Denmark and available as a dining, a lounge chair and a bar stool. The chairs are not stackable.

“With Pato, we wanted to create the optimal chair, suitable for every situation - anywhere. A chair with a simple expression and the best possible comfort.”

- Welling/Ludvik

The new Pato models are available from February 2019.
